William Penn knew what he wanted. "A country life and estate I like best for my children." By the spring of 1683 construction was underway on Penn's home in the country. Today, his recreated 17th century estate sits on 43 picturesque acres along the Delaware River. Come for a visit and experience colonial life at Penn's country home. Starting with a video, we will continue with a guided tour, and end with time spent in the gift shop. Explore the award-winning exhibit, and learn more about one of America's most famous Quakers. The past is waiting for you! Pictures, without flash, are allowed. Lunch, included in the price, will be at the King George II Inn. Sign-up deadline is August 1.
