Doubt (2008, PG13) Please join us on Monday Night, November 18 at 7:00 p.m. as we present "Doubt." PLEASE NOTE: due to a Village meeting, we need to move upstairs to the Ardmore Room in the Community Center for this "Monday Night at the Movies." Written and directed by John Patrick Shanley and based on his Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award winning play. The film takes place in the Bronx in 1964. Meryl Streep is Sister Aloysius, the principal of a Catholic school, who is not pleased when Father Flynn, a young new priest (Seymour Philip Hoffman) has recently been assigned to the school.. When another nun (Amy Adams) notices Father Flynn may be paying extra attention to the school's only black student, she takes her concerns to Sister Aloysius. A visit with the student's mother (poignantly played by Viola Davis) further casts suspicion on the actions of the priest. All four leads, and the film itself, were nominated for Oscars. "Doubt" is a tense, thought-provoking drama that presents more questions than answers – join us, and form your own conclusion!
